

From lab to space

December 13th, 2018

|

Keith Brannon kbrannon@tulane.edu

View PDF

Wound-healing technology developed at Tulane by former biomedical engineering graduate students blasted off on the SpaceX Dragon Cargo Ship for experiments on the International Space Station. Click the image below to learn more about their project's journey into outer space.

Innovation in Orbit